Nominations today for ASBYU posts

By DON SMURTHWAITE and GREGG GARBER
Universe Staff Writer

The nominations convention for student body elections is scheduled today in the Ballroom, ELWC. Formal nominations of candidates seeking ASBYU posts will occur at the meeting. The Cougar Band will be present, and Provo Mayor Russel Grange will briefly address the convention, according to Roxi Stanley, Elections Committee member.

Candidates will be nominated by their campaign managers, and the nomination will immediately be accepted or rejected by the five member Elections Committee, Miss Stanley explained.

Presidential candidates will each have two minutes to give a verbal acceptance of their nominations, and vice president nominees will be allowed one minute each, she said.

Candidates are encouraged to bring along their complete campaign staffs, Miss Stanley said.

"The more people a candidate can get there, the better," she continued. "It will add to the spirit. We want everyone to have a good time."

Miss Stanley said she expects a close, hard-fought campaign for all offices. "It will be an intense campaign, but we hope it will be fun, too. So far we haven't had any violations, so I think it will be a clean campaign," she said.

Active campaigning will begin immediately following the nominations convention.

There will be a mandatory rules meeting Saturday morning for all candidates and their campaign managers, said ASBYU Attorney General Chris Burdick.

Campaigning rules and violations procedures will be explained at the meeting, Miss Burdick said.

The time and place for the meeting are to be announced at the nominations convention, she said.

It is important that students attend the convention, Miss Stanley said. She added that she feels it is impossible for the candidates to contact each student, and so it is partly the responsibility of the voters to familiarize themselves with the platforms and issues.

Miss Stanley, a junior in pre-law from Ticonderoga N.Y., also emphasized that each vote is important. She pointed to the freshmen elections this past fall when Freshman Vice Pres. Scott Earnshaw edged his opponent by only four votes.

Chris Tew, public relations director for the Elections Committee, said election posters designed to increase voter participation will appear around campus for the first time today.

Tew said it is the goal of the elections committee to get 51 per cent of the student body to vote. Last year about 31 per cent of students voted, he added.

Just in 100 years, it would be nice to have student government officers elected by a majority," he said.

Primary elections are set for March 3, 4 and 5. The top two vote-getters for each office will then square off in the final elections scheduled for March 9-12.

Execs ask Forensics event V.P. vote, 5 phones involves 5 states

By DON SMURTHWAITE
Universe Staff Writer

A constitutional proposal to eliminate the freshman vice-presidency will appear on the ballot in March, and there will be five more free phones installed on campus, according to ASBYU Pres. Bob Henrie.

Both actions are the results of Thursday's Executive Council meeting.

Four interviewers, the council appointed two new members to the Budget Committee, and started work on selecting a class gift.

The council voted by a 7-1 margin to place the freshman office proposal before the student body in the coming elections with Scott Earnshaw, Freshman V.P., casting the dissenting vote.

Earnshaw proposed that the Freshman office be replaced by a new vice-presidency office called "New Student Involvement."

He said the new office would be responsible for involvement on a campus-wide basis, rather than for the freshman class only.

The Council thinks the freshman office needs less organization, less structure," Henrie said. "I think it was a wise move. It's cutting some of the waste in student government."

Henrie said he thinks a special representative appointed by the ASBYU President could more efficiently handle the responsibilities of the freshman vice-president. He also added he does not feel the Freshman Office warrants vice-presidency status.

The telephone proposal was passed unanimously. The new

The largest forensics tournament BYU has ever hosted is under way today. The largest meet ever to be held in the western United States, is scheduled to begin today and continue through Saturday.

Mac Haddow, assistant BYU debate coach and tournament director, said more than 1,400 high school students have been invited from schools in Arizona, California, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Wyoming to participate in the Cougar Forensics Classic.

Every Utah high school has been invited to this BYU Centennial event, he said.

The opening assembly will be in the de Jong Concert Hall, ELWC, today. The forensics event will be held at various locations across campus, with headquarters in the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Competition will continue until 9 p.m. tonight, said Haddow.

Saturday competition will begin at 8 a.m. That evening at 8 p.m. an awards assembly will be held in the de Jong Concert Hall.

According to Haddow, 135 trophies are to be awarded for individual, debate, and student congress winners. Sweepstakes trophies will also be given to teams with the highest overall individual and debate event totals. The sweepstakes trophies are over four feet high.

Students may participate in a total of three events; two individual events and either debate or student congress.

There are four areas of individual events open, Haddow said. Oratory, oral interpretation, impromptu speaking and extemporaneous speaking. Oratory is a speech to persuade on a topic of the contestant's choice.

Oral interpretation consists of interpreting a piece of literature on what they feel the author intended in his piece. In impromptu speaking, the student is given a topic and must speak on it without any preparation.

Extemporaneous speakers are given a topic dealing with a current news item and allowed one half hour to prepare.

The debate topic students will consider is "resolved that the development and allocation of scarce world resources should be controlled by an international organization."

Four divisions of debate are open to the high school students, said Haddow. Oxford division, which is the traditional style of debate where each team gives a constructive rebuttal speech. A Centennial event, the classic is sponsored by the campus forensics association, the Parley P. Pratt Debate Union, and the BYU chapter of Delta Sigma Rho-Tau Kappa Alpha, a national honorary speech society.

Times and places of each event may be obtained by calling the BYU Forensics Office, 374-1211, extension 3250.

Elder Perry to speak at Tuesday devotional

Elder L. Tom Perry of the Council of the Twelve will be Tuesday's devotional speaker at 10 a.m. in the Marriott Center.

A native of Logan, Utah, Elder Perry was called to the Council of the Twelve in April 1974, having served as an Assistant to the Twelve since 1972.

After fulfilling a mission to the Northern States, he spent two years in the Pacific with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Elder Perry was a counselor in a stake presidency, counselor in the Western Ward bishopric, a member of the New York Stake High Council and president of the Boston Stake.

He received his B.S. degree in finance from Utah State University in 1949 and did graduate work there in 1950.

Elder Perry was ordained a high priest on June 21, 1953 by former LDS Church President Harold B. Lee. He was set apart as a member of the Council of the Twelve by President Spencer W. Kimball.

Fireside to open Indian Week

By DAWNENA WALKINGSTICK
Universe Staff Writer

Gov. Rampton has declared the week of Feb. 22, as "Indian Emphasis Week" to coincide with BYU's annual Indian Week activities.

Indian Week, which is sponsored by the Tribe of Many Feathers (TMF) under the co-chairmanship of Pat Crawford and Kelly Harris, will include films, speakers, talent shows, fashion shows, and crafts displays, a pageant and a performance by the Lamanite Generation.

Harris said the week will begin with a fireside Sunday evening. The speaker will be Louis Singer, a member of an LDS stake presidency and school administrator from Blanding, Utah, he said.

Speakers for the week will include Miss Indian America Deanna Lo Harragarr, Morris Thompson, commissioner of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and film and television star Chief Dan George. Harris said most students would remember Chief Dan George from the movie "Little Big Man."

Miss Harragarr will speak at 5 p.m., Monday, at a family home evening in the Wilkinson Center, according to Harris.

"Chief Dan George will be speaking Tuesday at 11 a.m. in the Varsity Theatre," said Harris. "That We May Know" will be presented in the de Jong Concert Hall. AT 8 p.m., the Lamanite Generation will also perform in the de Jong Concert Hall. Harris said that both performances are free and anyone is invited.

On Wednesday from 10 to 12 a.m., a talent show will be presented in the Varsity Theatre followed by a two-hour fashion show, said Harris. At 3 p.m., Morris Thompson, will speak in 347 ELWC.

In conjunction with Indian Week, the Institute of American Indian Services (IAIS) will hold its fifth annual Native American Agricultural and Home Management Conference.

Howard Rainer, assistant director of IAIS said we expect about 250 Indian leaders, businessmen, farmers and homemakers for the conference. "The Conference is sponsored by the IAIS in cooperation with Kellogg Foundation in Battle Creek, Mich," he said.

Films shown

"Films will be shown in the Varsity Theatre Monday from 9 to 12 a.m., and admission is free," said Ramona Nee, president of the Tribe of Many Feathers. She said the films have all been produced by BYU and "that they are mostly Indian documentaries."

Miss Nee said "the TMF hopes that the student body will consider the full potential and types of offerings that are being extended through these different presentations, and become involved in the week's activities."

$6.1 billion veto upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's veto of a $6.1 billion public works bill was upheld Thursday when the Senate failed to muster the two-thirds margin needed to override.

The vote in the Senate was 63 to 35 to override, three short of the necessary margin.

The Senate voted less than three hours after the House supported overriding the veto by a 319-98 margin, 41 votes more than the necessary two-thirds.

Ford's victory

The failure of the Senate to override was a victory for the President, whose lobbyists had been pessimistic about chances of sustaining a veto.

Ford picked up nine Republican votes while losing two Democrats, compared to the vote when the bill originally passed the Senate last July 29.

White House lobbyists never held out much hope of blocking an override in the House which passed the bill by a 4 to 1 margin.

The Democratic congressional leadership contended the measure would create up to 600,000 public works jobs. In his veto message last Friday, Ford disputed that claim.

"The truth is that this bill would do little to create jobs for the unemployed," the President said.

Bill is deficient

"Moreover, this bill has so many deficiencies and undesirable provisions that it would do more harm than good," he added. "While it is represented as the solution to our unemployment problems, in fact, it is little more than an election year pork barrel."

Ford also contended that it would cost $15,000 for every job created by the bill.

Alternative measures were filed by Republicans in the House and Senate. Their sponsors contended they would create more jobs faster and at a lower cost.

During the House debate, Republican minority leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona voiced administration arguments that the bill would spend "tax dollars for leaf-raking jobs." Rhodes added it would take a year for the jobs created by the Democratic bill to be available.

Veto ill-timed

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okl., said, "This is the most ill-timed veto in the last five years."

Frontier pilots vote no strike

DENVER (AP) — Pilots for Frontier Airlines have voted overwhelmingly not to strike, Robert M. Schulman, a Frontier spokesman, announced Thursday.

Although Schulman did not say what the exact vote was, he said "we understand it was nearly 90 per cent in opposition to a strike."

A 30-day cooling off period which began when the board stepped out of stalemate negotiations is scheduled to end at 10 p.m. Friday. Contract negotiations resumed Tuesday.

Negotiating sessions between the Air Line Pilots Association and Frontier officials are being held with the National Mediation Board at the board's Washington office.

Two seek governor's post from GOP, American party

A Davis County commissioner and a Richfield dentist both announced their intentions to run for governor of Utah Thursday.

Stanley M. Smoot, who has served on the Davis County commission for 12 years, began his campaign for the GOP nomination in Provo at 8 a.m., calling for a reduced role and cost in state government.

Smoot had planned a day-long tour of the northern part of the state Thursday, ending in his home county for a Republican fund-raising Lincoln Day dinner.

Dr. L.S. Brown, who has made two unsuccessful bids on the American party ticket for a seat in the House of Representatives, announced that he will seek the nomination for governor from the American party.

At a Provo press conference, Smoot admitted that he had placed well behind undeclared Republican gubernatorial candidate Vernon Romney, Utah attorney general, in a recent opinion poll. He attributed this to the fact that he has not received the same state-wide exposure as Romney.

He expressed confidence in his strategy of a "people's campaign" to bring him up in the polls, pointing out that he had risen considerably in a February poll from a poll taken in September of last year.

He also said he did not want to split the Republican party with his campaign.

Dr. Brown, who was instrumental in the initial organization of a committee which worked for the defeat of the Equal Rights Amendments in Utah, said he has been active for many years in reestablishing the U.S. Constitution.

He currently serves as state chairman of the Liberty Amendment Committee.

A section of Provo-Orem residents, including (from left) Iva Draper, Dr. Ted Lyon, David Burns and Merlin Corcoran split three to two over the question of whether the proposed ski resort east of Provo is a good thing.

Such a social situation, said Bob Hampton, "could serve to make the moral fiber in the community a little stronger, if the people are as committed to the church as they say they are."

Danny and Margo Frank, Provo residents see "more different races and different religions as desirable because of the Mormon Church." The expressed opposition to the exclusive LDS influence "for the same reason we don't like Zoolbie (BYZO) students, because they think they're the town."

In fact, Merlin Corbin from Tustin, Calif., in the BYU CDFP program said, "I think it might be good because it would bring a lot of publicity for the Church."

Several people said they had no qualms about the social effects. "I don't see why it should cause social problems that couldn't be controlled," said Ruth Johnson, of the BYU cafeteria staff.

Brian Madson commented, "I don't think that a lot of element will come."

A big reason for favoring the resort was the skiing.

Sain Ellis Taylor, "I enjoy skiing. I want somewhere close. The land might as well be used as much as possible."

Jolynn Anderson, a sophomore in nursing from Provo, said her boyfriend had visited the site of the proposed resort and had said the area was excellent for skiing. "Nobody can see that area unless we have some way to get up there," she added.

Some objected to the influx of people.

"A little growth is fine, but they would be dipping millions of people here," said Charles Clater, a graduate student in microbiology. "They've got to be out of their minds."

"I like Provo in its hick-town way, so I really don't want to see a large influx of people," said Kathy Done, a BYU employee.

Mrs. R. E. Fullmer of Salt Lake City commented, "ski areas now are so busy—everybody is flying in there to ski and they make it miserable for the rest of us."

"We don't like it," said Chet and Adda Overson of Orem. "We went to Aspen last year and we'd hate to see Provo turn into another Aspen."

The occasional objections included worry over traffic problems, not enough snow and conservation.

Some reasons for favoring the resort included good restaurants, recreation and opportunity to share the good of the Provo land with others.

Mrs. Draper said she didn't worry over the traffic situation because "the traffic can't get any worse than it is now."

The resort included good restaurants, recreation and opportunity to share the good of the Provo land with others.

phones will be located in the Smith Family Living Center, Jesse Knight Building, Jesse Knight Building Annex, Harris Fine Arts Center, and the Talmage Math Computer Building, according to Executive Vice-President Clark Richter, who originally proposed the procurement.

The two new members of the Budget Committee are Chris Nielson and Robert Cowan. Cowan will also serve as the chairman of the committee.

Finance vice-president Cleve Adams will head the Class Gift Subcommittee. Each year funds are appropriated to purchase a gift to the school from the graduates. The allotment this year is about $7,000 according to Henric.

Henric suggested students with ideas concerning an appropriate gift should contact Adams in his office, 437 ELWC.

Y library remodeling puts squeeze on space

By LESLIE WULFERT
Universe Staff Writer

No rental typewriters are available in the library since remodeling began last Monday.

Lack of room is becoming a major problem for the library during remodeling, according to Doug Bush, assistant director of public services. He said it's difficult to leave study areas open for student use and still find places for the employee's offices and reference desks.

Early in the week, the walls of the typing room on the third floor were taken down to convert the area into a photo copy room, according to Bush.

Bush said students have been asking when more typewriters will be available. He said the library is trying to do something about the problem and he plans to call the Academics Office to make arrangements for additional typewriter space.

Students should always be able to find a place to study and noise from the construction should not be a major problem in the library, according to Sterling Albrecht, assistant director of libraries.

Study space limited

Albrecht said the only time the library is crowded is during the devotional hour at 10 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. He added study carrels have been removed on the first, second and third floors because of the construction. Although study areas have decreased it should not create an overcrowded situation for the students, Albrecht said.

He said the honors reading room on the fourth floor, previously used for studying, has been converted into temporary offices. The library staff from the third floor had to move their offices to the reading room so remodeling could begin there early next week, Albrecht said.

The only noise will be over when the walls of the offices behind the third floor circulation desk are taken down which should be completed soon, he said.

Bush said when the remodeling is complete in two to three months, all reference desk areas will be located in the core area between the two library buildings. The present reference desk areas will be study and typing rooms to better facilitate the needs of the students, he said.

Albrecht said he wants to thank the students for their patience and understanding during the construction. He said he thinks it's great the way students have cooperated and "rolled with the punches."

President Peron promises to retire

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—President Isabel Peron after seven months of increasing demands for her resignation or impeachment, has promised that a presidential election will be held before the end of the year and that she will not run. But she said she would serve out her term.

Her term does not end until May 25, 1977. There was no indication of possible candidates to succeed her.

There was speculation that the major opposition political parties, the military and divided Peronist movement had agreed to accept Mrs. Peron's promise to retire and let her remain in office to preserve the constitutional facade and also to keep her from becoming a political martyr and future potential candidate.

It was also believed that Mrs. Peron had agreed to accept advice from her opponents and the military on government appointments and policies.

Belief that a compromise had been worked out was heightened by Interior Minister Roberto Ares' announcement that an end of Monday would be convened again next Wednesday the congressional session which Mrs. Peron had decreed to end. Congressional opponents had been threatening impeachment of the president.

Y Engineering Week to show Yank ingenuity

Friday, said Terri Hurst, committee chairman.

Dr. Armin J. Hill, dean of the College of Engineering Sciences and Technology, said the public is invited to the engineering open house Feb. 27 and 28 in the Engineering Sciences and Technology Building.

The root beer wagon contest will be held Thursday in the foyer, ESTB, from 10-11 a.m. The object of the contest is to construct a vehicle to carry a can of root beer 15 meters, deposit the can upright and return to the starting point in the shortest amount of time.

There will be a potential energy vehicle contest Thursday at 3 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center that will feature model cars powered by the potential energy of a five kilogram weight. The prize will go to the vehicle covering the greatest distance.

There will also be engineering film every day concerning the various aspects of engineering. The films will be shown in 321 ELWC from 1-3 p.m.

The public is invited to view the engineering displays Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Wilkinson Center. Some of the displays will be demonstrations on how nylon is made, an explanation of the NASA Land Satellite Program, and a demonstration of the air drag of model cars in a wind tunnel.

There will also be a Mountain Bell laser and microwave exhibit in the foyer, ESTB from 10 a.m. to 5-5:45 p.m. on

Sandy case may affect state land sale to resort

By TOM O'DELL
Universe Staff Writer

The sale of former state lands by Provo City to the Four Seasons group may be affected by a recent court ruling in the city of Sandy.

Third District Court Judge Stewart Hanson, Jr., issued an injunction against Sandy in connection with the sale of city property that was to be sold without public bids being taken.

Sandy City Manager Jim Ash told the Universe Tuesday. "We went to court and the judge said a publicly announced hearing had to be held before the land could be sold. He also ruled that all city-owned property must be put up for public bid before it can be sold."

Sandy Attorney Robert Gunn said the ruling might be used as a precedent if a lawsuit is filed in Provo to halt the sale of land to Four Seasons. "Yes, it could have a definite impact on the Four Seasons question."

"Our research has indicated there was no state statute requiring public bidding," explained Gunn. "There is however a state statute that says a municipal government must dispose of city property for the good or benefit of the people."

Gunn said this was interpreted by Hanson as not being "done for the good of the people unless there is a public bid."

"Of course I disagree with Judge Hanson," Gunn continued, "but he does have a valid point. If we'd known he was going to rule that we would have taken bids, since this is our normal procedure."

Gunn said, "I feel that I would have a fair chance of having it overturned by the State Supreme Court, but there is also a good chance of Judge Hanson being sustained in his interpretation."

"I indicated to the people I represent that he would probably be right in his ruling," Gunn said. "Judge Hanson is characteristically right. He is one of the finest judges in the state of Utah."

Gunn explained that if a lawsuit were filed in Provo and the judge ruled the city had acted improperly, the sale of the land would be reversed, at least until the judge felt the city had complied fully.

Aide forsee Ford win in N.H. primary race

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — President Ford's chief political aide, Rogers C.B. Morton, says a two-day swing through northern New Hampshire has convinced him that Ford is the Republican frontrunner in the nation's first presidential primary.

Morton says he arrived in New Hampshire "with kind of the blues... with the idea that we were in a tough situation."

But now, he said, "I think we're the frontrunner."

Ford is due in the state late today for a final campaign stint, an appearance in Keene tonight and a half-way in southeastern New Hampshire on Friday.

His opponent, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, arrives Friday for a last weekend of campaigning before the balloting Tuesday.

Both camps say the Republican race is close, with the decision probably in the hands of voters who are still undecided.

Morton, the presidential counselor who handles political tasks for the White House, said Wednesday that he has no figures or polls to back up his optimism.

"I feel intuitively that there is a swing toward the President," he said in Concord. "Maybe it's because I'm on that side."

While Morton claimed the role of favorite for Ford, the Democrats tried to pin the label on each other.

Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona said former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is the frontrunner. Carter said it's Udall. "Because he's concentrated almost all his entire past 18 months" in New Hampshire.

Udall said Carter is trying to "make his victory — if he has one — look even bigger."

Other campaign developments: In Morton seemed to disagree with Ford's contention that Reagan is too conservative to be elected president even if he wins the Republican nomination. Morton said Reagan would be "more difficult to elect" but that it's too soon to tell whether he could win.

He said he would support Reagan if the former governor is nominated.

Former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird predicted that Ford may lose some primaries to Reagan but will win the nomination and be elected in November. At a news conference in Madison — sponsored by Ford's Wisconsin campaign committee — Laird said Reagan would be a good candidate but "I just happen to feel that President Ford is the better candidate."

Common Cause chairman John Gardner said Reagan is the only major candidate who has not revealed his personal financial status. He said that Reagan "will be haunted by it for months to come" unless he discloses his finances.

Reagan's press secretary, Lyn Nofziger, said Reagan has decided not to enter Pennsylvania's April 27 primary, partly because delegates there run uncommitted and may vote for any candidate at the national convention. Pennsylvania also has a presidential preference section on its primary ballot but that has no effect on delegate selection, and Nofziger said Reagan feels he has little to gain by opposing Ford there.

Democratic candidate R. Sargent Shriver told a Boston news conference that he has learned the Soviet Union has revised its policies to permit families with defense secrets to emigrate. He said he had intervened as a private citizen in behalf of a number of people in the Soviet Union, and he criticized the Ford administration for not bargaining with the Russians on emigration.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., pledged to reopen the Boston Navy Yard if he is elected, saying the United States is falling "farther and farther behind the Soviet Union in seapower." Jackson issued a position paper which said the Soviet navy has become "a major force on the high seas. We are falling behind, and other countries are gaining rapidly at our expense."

The Communist Party in America announced its candidates for president and vice president: Gus Hall and Jarvis Tyner. Angela Davis, a member of the party's central committee, made the announcement in New York.

Seminar will focus on parents

Legal rights of parents will be the beginning topic of today's Family Research Conference.

Dr. Robert J. Levy of the University of Minnesota Law School will discuss the government's role in protecting parent's rights at 9:30 a.m. in the Varsity Theatre.

Consequences of the federal government's activities concerning families with children will be the topic discussed by the director of the Office of Child Development in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Dr. Cecelia Sudia.

Impact of government programs on the quality of life in the American family will be discussed by William Goode, sociologist from Columbia University.

Sen. Frank Moss and Rep. Gann McKay will join the three professors in a panel discussion at 1:30 p.m.

Discussion of the relationship of family size and birth order to academic achievement began Thursday's session of the conference.

Responding to the claim that achievement decreases with each child born into a family, Dr. Richard Galbraith of the CDPR department, concluded that there is no "empirical foundation to justify limitation of families" on that ground.

Dr. Galbraith said there is only a 1.93 point difference between I.Q. test scores in a family of seven.

Dr. Galbraith concluded that a child's intelligence is more likely determined by the average intellectual environment within the family than birth order or family size.

On the other hand, Dr. Boyd Rollins cited a study conducted in Ontario Canada which supported the "Dumber by the Dozen" theory.

Dr. Rollins indicated that girls in large families showed no drop in I.Q. Fewer academic achievements came to boys in families over five, Dr. Rollins said.

News credibility slip showing

By BROOKE TODD
Universe Staff Writer

Newspaper credibility is on the decline, but there are means of combating it, the editor and general manager of the Deseret News said when he spoke on campus Thursday.

William B. Smart outlined the pros and cons of the newspaper business, beginning with job opportunities and then moving to a national decline in newspaper readership and newspaper credibility.

Smart praised the BYU Communications Department for its program of contribution to the news industry. He said that BYU interns working at the Deseret News are consistently superior.

More people are showing an interest in journalism, he said. The number of graduates in the field has increased 13.8 percent in the last year. This is good, he said. However, he added, it is bad that jobs are tough to get.

There has been a "substantial decline in readership penetration" (whether or not a family subscribes to a newspaper) according to Smart. Afternoon newspapers across the nation have suffered an 18.5 per cent decline in the past 18 years. He said he feels that the decline boils down to the impact television has made on society.

This decline concerns him greatly, he said, for the "viability of a democracy depends on an informed public." Switching over to the "good news," the newspaper is still a very strong media, reaching more people with more information.

Speaking about credibility, Smart stated "We're now rated, as a profession, below garbage men." In terms of honesty, journalists are rated above politicians, used car and door-to-door salesmen, but below everyone else.

However, in a recent poll conducted across the nation, newspapers have dropped only four points in public confidence in the past 10 years. This may be compared with the U.S. Supreme Court and religion losing nine points, the executive branch of the federal government 13 and major business companies 34 points.

This small drop, he pointed out, "may be because we were low to begin with." These statistics seem to show that society is now in a era of skepticism, he said.

According to surveys conducted by the Deseret News, the paper has received a more favorable attitude from its readers during the past few years. Smart said he strongly believed this was due to the Deseret News showing it is interested in the public good first of all.

He said he feels that showing the public it cares, "is the kind of thing that must be done by newspapers." Some of the areas the Deseret News works on that Smart mentioned were remembering 18.5 per cent decline in the public trust, remember the public good supercedes private motives and trying to be fair and balanced in its editing.

Some ways of showing the public that it cares include consumer good articles and the goal program of the Deseret News, according to Smart.

Area draft boards to close this month

As a result of a reduced budget recommendation for the Selective Service System, all local draft boards will be closed by the end of February 1976.

Delmore John, the state director of Selective Service for Utah, said the budget cut will directly affect the number of employees in the agency.

This reduction in the work force of the draft agency, he said, made necessary the termination of all registrant processing on Jan. 27, 1976.

"This means there will be no registration or lottery drawing in the foreseeable future, no classification actions, and young men will no longer have any requirement to report changes of address or anything else to their local boards," John said.

Ina Robbins, BYU veteran's coordinator, said that for men who turned 18 on April 2, 1975 and later, no legal problems will be encountered because they did not register.

The requirement to have "draft" cards in their personal possession at all times is no longer required, John said. If the card is lost or stolen, there is no need to ask for a replacement.

"In fact," John said, "replacement cards will no longer be issued."

Any person participating in President Ford's Clemency Program who wishes to enroll with Selective Service to perform his alternate service obligation must contact John's office in person, by phone or by mail after the end of February, he said.

John added that his office will be the only Selective Service contact in Utah after the changes. The office is located at 465 S. 400 East, in Salt Lake City.

Wheat condition critical

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1976 winter wheat crop was in critical condition by mid-February in drought-stricken areas of the Great Plains breadbasket and it was beyond salvage in some places, according to the Agriculture Department.

In Texas, Oklahoma and major portions of Kansas and Colorado, "conditions remain critical," the department said in a weekly weather review on Wednesday.

"In Kansas, the wheat condition deteriorated amid dry topsoils and subsoils across the state," the report said. "Soil erosion from wind is severe in the southwest and south central areas, and moderate in the west central and central districts."

Officials said recent unseasonable warm weather had caused the wheat to begin premature growth in areas where there was enough moisture and that widespread insect infestations were reported.

In Texas, the report said, irrigated winter wheat was making good growth by Feb. 15, but "dryland stands are dying and some fields are beyond recovery."

The department is not scheduled to announce a new estimate of 1976 winter wheat production until May 10. Winter wheat accounts for about three-fourths of all U.S. wheat production. In December, shortly after the crop was planted, production tentatively was estimated at 1.5 billion bushels, down 9 per cent from last year's record harvest.

In contrast to growing concern about U.S. grain prospects, the department said recent midwinter snow cover has "tended to be above average" in the Soviet Union, helping to protect winter grain there.

The Soviet Union last year had its smallest grain harvest in a decade and was forced to buy heavily on the world grain market, including large quantities of corn and wheat from the United States.

In another report Wednesday the department said the value of U.S. farm exports during 1975-1976 is expected to total $22.1 billion, another record, compared with $21.6 billion last season.

But the new value estimate is down about $600 million from the department's $22.7 billion projection last fall for the current fiscal year, which began last July 1.

Officials said the volume of farm exports still is expected to be a record at almost 105 million metric tons against 84.5 million in 1974-75 and the previous high of 103.3 million in 1973-74.

Guatemala confronts aftershock

GUATEMALA CITY, (AP) — A strong aftershock rumbled through this earthquake-conscious city Wednesday, sending thousands of residents fleeing into streets and public parks.

Hundreds of families returned in recent days to their shaky homes for the first time since the disastrous Feb. 4 earthquake, which officials estimate killed 22,122 persons, injured 74,015 and left more than a million homeless.

Wednesday's aftershock was recorded at 3:58 a.m. and measured 3.6 on the 12-point Mercalli scale — from 1 for an earthquake detected only by seismographs to 12 for a quake causing total destruction of all buildings. Its epicenter was located 22 miles northeast of the capital, the national observatory said.

Inspectors checking buildings and houses condemned many buildings that appeared safe. Makeshift tents set up in streets and parks are causing traffic jams and make street cleaning difficult, but delivery of water, food and medicines from abroad has not been delayed.

International aid continues to arrive. Every Western Hemisphere nation has donated supplies or money.

3 ex-engineers cite N-power plant peril

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three engineers who quit their jobs to warn of nuclear-power perils said Thursday federal safety checks on reactor controls are less stringent than those on toasters and hair dryers. One said a dangerous reactor accident is likely by the year 2,000.

The three said nuclear plants in the United States are operating with serious deficiencies and declared they don't believe the Nuclear Regulatory Commission is explaining to the public its concerns about safety. One of the trio accused the commission of suppressing internal dissent.

The engineers, who resigned from middle-level management positions at General Electric's nuclear division Feb. 2 so they could focus attention on nuclear safety defects, testified to the Joint Atomic Energy Committee.

They warned that federal regulations lack any requirement for an independent review of certain nuclear controls. The three former General Electric officials, Dale G. Bridenbaugh, Richard B. Hubbard and Gregory C. Minor, said in their statement that the ability of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to effectively regulate the nuclear industry is suspect.

U.N. troops take first steps in implementing Sinai truce

By The Associated Press

United Nations troops took up new positions in the Sinai desert Thursday occupying mountain passes monitored by a complex of Egyptian, Israeli and American-manned early warning stations.

Israeli troops will evacuate the Mitla and Gidi passes — held since their capture from Egypt in the 1967 Middle East War — on Saturday by terms of the disengagement pact worked out by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger last September.

Egyptian soldiers will complete their advance into the former U.N. zone to the west by Sunday when the agreement comes into full effect.

The 4,000-member U.N. force was increased by approximately 600 to cope with its new duties.

The passes are the only routes through the mountains of central Sinai accessible to tanks and other heavy military machines.

Israeli forces are to withdraw to defensive positions at the eastern ends of the passes, less than two miles from the American-manned early warning stations and sensor fields that will monitor the three-year truce.

retroactive date of the conversion, if current account holders approve the proposal.

A vote is set for March 5, and Prudential is soliciting proxies in favor of the change.

A few account holders have taken legal steps, filing a "class action" lawsuit purportedly representing all account holders similar to them, in an attempt to block the changeover.

A solicitation statement sent by Prudential to all account holders says the switch would help the firm in "attracting and retaining capable management personnel" through various incentives.

The Israelis also continued their withdrawal from Sinai territory north of the Gidi and Mitla region, pulling back from 600 square miles of sand dunes and desert scrub reaching to the Mediterranean shore.

The September agreement stipulates that Israel will withdraw from a total of 1,900 square miles of the Sinai peninsula by Saturday and turn it over to U.N. and Egyptian forces.

Zumwalt poised to run

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Elmo R. Zumwalt, retired chief of naval operations, is poised to announce his candidacy for the U.S. Senate after receiving assurances of labor support from top AFL-CIO officials, labor sources say.

The sources said Zumwalt will declare his candidacy for the Democratic nomination in Virginia next week, where he intends to run against Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., a conservative independent.

There has been much speculation in recent months that Zumwalt, a colorful figure who brought many changes to the Navy through his efforts at Modernizing personnel standards, would enter politics.

He spent several days this week meeting with AFL-CIO President George Meany and Meany's top political strategists.

"It will be an uphill fight to lick Byrd, but if anyone can give him a fight, it's Zumwalt," one source said. "Virginia's one state where a military background is a political asset."

The thinking among labor officials is that even if Zumwalt should lose, the campaign will put him in a better position to defeat William Scott, Virginia's junior senator.

Researcher says

Good kids? 3 factors

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — The brightest, happiest, most charming children spend their earliest years in remarkably similar ways, researchers say. They listen to adult conversations, roam freely around their homes and spend a lot of time staring.

The study, they say, provides a blueprint for raising terrific kids.

Prof. Burton L. White of Harvard University outlined the research for reporters Wednesday, a day in advance of its formal presentation at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

White, who heads Harvard's Pre-School Project, said he reached his conclusions by watching parents who consistently have bright, socially attractive children. These children score highly on social and intelligence tests, he said.

About one family in 30 produces these kinds of children, he said, and the ability does not seem to be affected by income or education.

"The single most important factor in this is the mother," White said. "She has a greater influence over a child's experiences than anyone else."

He added, "A rich social experience is the best thing you can do to ensure a good mind." For the child, this means seeking attention from the mother, following her around and learning cooperation.

The everyday objects in the home provide a wide range of visual excitement for the child.

"Educational toys are baloney," he said. "It's a very rare toy company that knows very much about kids."

How a child will turn out depends on his experiences before the age of 3.

Cancer cure? Medic a cautious

A breast cancer treatment that has been hailed as a breakthrough is not an "absolute remedy" and needs more testing, the head of the Italian team that discovered it has warned.

"Let's hope we can save thousands of lives," Dr. Gianni Bonadonna said in an interview Wednesday night. "Hopes are justified. But there is no certainty. More tests and studies over the next three years will be needed."

Bonadonna and a team of associates at the National Cancer Institute of Italy developed a treatment combining three drugs which resulted in a sharp reduction in the recurrence of the disease among women who had been operated on for advanced breast cancer. The results were reported this week in the New England Journal of Medicine and termed of "monumental importance."

The three-drug combination is called CMF.

"The drugs we used for our study are on the market and available to patients for treatment in community hospitals," Bonadonna said. "But patient and public opinion must not think we have developed the absolute remedy."

"The main point is that physicians should be aware of the new possibility and that patients learn that something is being done for them," the 41-year-old doctor said.

His team reported that in a 27-month experiment with 386 women who had had radical mastectomies — removal of the breast, lymph nodes and nearby muscles — cancer recurred in 5 per cent of the 207 women who had the combined drug treatment for a year and in 24 per cent of the 179 who did not get the drugs.

Shop will honor original estimate

Editor's Note: The Office of the Ombudsman receives Student complaints, investigates, and recommends action on consumer, legal, or university problems.)

Issue: I took my car in for repairs and received a cost estimate of $40. I gave them my phone number and told them to call me if the repairs would cost any more than that. When I went back to pick up my car, they gave me a bill for over $100. I don't have the money. What can I do?

Answer: We contacted the repair shop and read them Section V of the "Rules Governing Utah Consumer Sales Practice Act," which states that is a deceptive practice for a business to charge for additional repairs which exceed 10 per cent of the original estimate, unless the permission of the customer is obtained. They then agreed that it was their mistake and that they would only charge the original $40 estimate. It makes good sense to always get a firm estimate, preferably in writing.

Issue: I put $25 down on a pair of skis, but I don't have the money to pay the balance. I went back to the store for a refund and they refused to return my $25. Can they keep by deposit?

Answer: In reviewing your receipt from the business, we found that no mention was made of the refund policy. Since the Consumer Sales Practices Act requires this information on every receipt for a deposit, the business should return your $25.

Technical writing, subject of new text

A new book by two BYU professors aims at correcting what they say is a prevalent problem—the trend toward noncommunication between social scientists and those outside a given discipline.

"Technical Writing for Social Scientists" was authored by John S. Harris, associate professor of English, and Reed H. Blake, associate professor of sociology and social psychology. The 122-page volume was printed by Nelson-Hall of Chicago.

The authors state the purpose of the book is to introduce the fundamentals of a specialized form of writing, technical writing, to social scientists.

"In technical writing, the concern is not only with writing that can be understood, but also with writing that cannot be misunderstood," Harris and Blake assert. "Clarity is more important than beauty."

Since social curricula do not include a technical writing course, the authors find many social scientists uncertain and uneasy about the writing process. They maintain that writing in social sciences should be an experience in the rhetoric of the scientific method. Familiarity with the techniques of technical writing will encourage social scientists to write with clarity and conciseness, the writers say.

The book stresses (1) organization, interpretation and reporting of data objectively and (2) the writing of correct and clear reports for consumption within and outside of discipline.

Prof. Harris is chairman of the Technical Writing Program at BYU, the largest such program in the United States, and is national president of Teachers of Technical Writing. He has written numerous articles on writing and technical subjects.

Prof. Blake, a former chairman of journalism at Weber State College, has taught communications also at Dixie College, Mount Union College and Utah State University, as well as technical writing at Weber and Hill Air Force Base.

Hung jury concludes Helm trial

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (AP) — A drunk driving trial for former Highway Patrol Supt. Roy "Mack" Helm has ended with a hung jury, but Deputy Davis County Atty. Stephen Vanderlinden said he will seek a new trial.

The charge stemmed from a Nov. 2 accident in which Helm's auto went off I-15 as he turned onto the Centerville exit.

The accident triggered events which led to his dismissal from the patrol last December by the patrol's Civil Service Commission for what was described as continued use of alcohol and conduct unbecoming his office.

His defense attorney contended outcome of the Bountiful City Court trial could effect possible reinstatement of Helm, which the commission had said would depend on rehabilitation.

The four-man jury was 3-1 for conviction, and foreman said, when the judge declared it a mistrial Wednesday after six hours 20 minutes of deliberation which began at 10:45 a.m.

Laxalt's plane crashes

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — A light plane carrying Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., crash-landed on a branch of San Francisco Bay late Wednesday night, but he escaped injury and flew on to Washington, authorities reported.

Nevada, is a chief strategist for the presidential campaign of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The Coast Guard said Laxalt's plane ran out of fuel. The twin-engine Cessna went into San Leandro Bay, near Oakland, some 300 yards short of the airport's north runway, police said.

College of Humanities enters second decade

By PAUL DIXON
Universe Staff Writer

The English and foreign language instruction has a long history at BYU, the college that administers that instruction has existed only a few years.

The College of Humanities was created in June 1965, and the division of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences. The existence of the separate organization is the English and foreign language instruction, further development in this organization, plus the vigorous leadership of a dean have provided rapid progress in the decade.

One dean

college's first and only dean, Dr. Bruce B. Clark, earning a Ph.D. in English and philosophy at the University of Utah, Dr. Clark came to BYU to teach in 1950. Before being named to the dean's position in 1965, he had served for five years as chairman of the English Department.

Clark had been a bishop for 10 years and had served in other church callings. Church training, he said, is at least as important as university assignments in preparing him for his responsibilities as dean. He is decade before it was divided. A history by the College of Humanities stated that "Although major changes were occurring and significant accomplishments of all kinds were being achieved in the college as the university expanded under the dynamic leadership of Pres. Wilkinson in the middle years of his long administration, the College of Humanities and Social Sciences, with seven deans or acting deans in 11 years, could not, however excellent the leadership of those deans, develop a consistent philosophy and direction and sense of unity, as was done and the federal government has been kept from — requiring the elimination of lead in gasoline."

But the state must reckon with the lead additive industry, which so far has used the courts to beat back federal efforts to reduce lead

Editor-writer to give lecture

The role of library research in advancing library research will be the topic of a lecture Monday at 3 p.m. in 321 ELWC.

Dr. Richard M. Dougherty, university librarian at University of California at Berkeley, has been invited by the School of Library and Information Sciences to speak on his own experiences as a writer and editor.

Dr. Dougherty is a prolific writer and editor, according to Dr. Maurice P. Marchant, director of the School of Library and Information Sciences.

The speaker is the author of a book entitled "Scientific Management in Libraries." He is also the editor of two journals — "College and Research Libraries" and "Journal of Academic Librarianship."

the formation of the college in 1965.

Expansion and revision of the college's organization, according to Dr. Clark, has brought about a more effective administration. "In the last 10 years," he said, "we've made a complete reorganization. The areas of our college are now shaped the way they ought to be."

At first only two departments existed within the college — the Department of English and the Department of Foreign Languages.

Largest department

The English Department has always been the largest department in the college. In fact, it is now the largest in the university in terms of personnel.

Not only does the department instruct thousands of students in classes for BYU general education requirements, but awards more degrees than nearly any other department at the university.

Over the years, a major evolution has occurred in the area of foreign language administration. From a single department, five foreign language departments were eventually created — Asian and Slavic Languages, Classical Biblical and Middle Eastern Languages, Germanic Languages, French and Italian, and Spanish and Portuguese.

Linguistics

A Department of Linguistics was formed, and a program for teaching English as a second language was created under its jurisdiction. The Department of Humanities and Comparative Literature was created in 1969. An interdepartmental program in Latin American Studies, which existed before the college was formed, continued and grew as part of the new College of Humanities.

The college formed a Language Research Center in 1970. Two of the main projects of the center have been gathering information to assist Church leaders in inter-cultural relations and working on computer-assisted language translation.

The past decade has also seen the development of enrichment programs for students, such as the weekly International Cinema, study abroad programs in Austria, France, Spain, Mexico and England, discussions for students and faculty in the "English Circle," the Latin American Center, which sponsors activities for BYU's Latin American students.

Centennial Reflections

Legislator criticizes subsidies

SLAT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Republican leader of the Utah Senate says he's surprised no citizen or public interest group has filed a lawsuit challenging the legality of salary subsidies paid to some teacher-legislators.

The subsidies are paid by the Utah Education Association, one of the strongest lobbying groups on Utah's Capitol Hill, to its own members who also serve in the legislature.

The UEA makes up the difference in salaries some educators get as members of the legislature what they would get from their regular education jobs.

Fewer than a half of the dozen eligible lawmakers take the subsidy, according to the UEA.

The UEA says the plan allows relatively wealthy teachers to serve in the legislature along with richer lawmakers such as bankers and lawyers.

But Senate Minority Leader Dixie Leavitt, R-Cedar City, said Wednesday he doesn't think it's right for teachers to "get paid under the table."

He said the Senate itself could take action on ethical grounds to prevent such salary subsidies, but he said he thinks it would be better for someone to bring a lawsuit over the matter.

Leavitt said as far as he is concerned, the subsidies are no different than corporate bribes.

Europeans worried

U.S. clout questioned

LONDON (AP) — Some influential Europeans are beginning to worry that the post-World War II alliance with the United States is in danger of crumbling. Many of them feel their trans-Atlantic ally can no longer be counted on to give firm leadership in a changing world.

A survey by The Associated Press disclosed that the main factor behind these concerns is the continuing conflict between the White House and Congress and other domestic developments that seem to some Europeans to have paralyzed the ability of President Ford's administration to counter Soviet threats around the world.

Problems continue

They see this condition continuing into future administrations.

Julian Amery, son-in-law of former British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan and a former minister in the Foreign Office, said in a recent interview that America's internal problems have robbed Washington of its capacity to lead.

"In Vietnam they have experienced the first military defeat in their history," he said. "They have seen the dollar drastically devalued, they have endured the shame of Watergate and now are in the toils of a masochistic investigation into the CIA. The administration's hands are tied by their legislature. They cannot give the lead."

Churchill's grandson

Winston S. Churchill, grandson of Britain's World War II leader, also lamented in a recent speech what he called "the grotesque orgy of self-denigration, of party political mudslinging" going on in Washington.

Late last month, Belgian Defense Minister Paul Vanden Boeynants called for a truly unified European defense system because he said the continent could no longer put all its trust in the United States.

"What would become of us if the U.S. nuclear umbrella were to disappear tomorrow?" he asked. "The farmer in Nevada does not care about faraway Europe."

NATO problems

Some Europeans are also concerned by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's warnings of serious consequences to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) if the Communists gain admission to the government coalition in Italy.

This is a real possibility, and the Communists are increasing their influence in other NATO nations to such an extent that some Socialist governments are considering closer cooperation with them.

Doubt expressed

There seems little doubt, according to the AP survey, that some key governments within the 15-nation NATO alliance share some of these concerns. But thus far, the worries have been expressed by out-of-office-politicians, diplomats and newspaper and magazine commentators rather than by heads of governments.

All this is occurring at a time of growing Soviet military buildup around the world and increasing Soviet political influence, as in Angola.

Twelve years ago, the Americans were spending 20 per cent more on defense than the Russians. An authoritative NATO estimate suggests real U.S. military spending, discounting inflation, is 20 per cent less today than in 1962 and about 75 per cent of the Soviet defense budget.

Vets to get dividends this month

Veterans who have kept in force their insurance policies from World War I and II and the Korean Conflict will be mailed dividend checks during late February.

According to Elmer Smith, director of the Veteran's Administration Regional Office, checks totaling $223 million will be sent out under the National Service Life Insurance policies.

This mailing of checks will involve approximately three million veterans nationally while in Utah, 585 veterans will be involved.

The early payment of dividends is in keeping with the Veteran's Administration's traditional policy.

Mr. Smith explained that an individual veteran might receive more or less than the average dividend payment depending upon the insurance plan under which he is protected, the amount of the policy, the veteran's aids at issue or renewal, and the month of the time the policy has been in force.

Ford lifts Japanese order, vows no repetition of error

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pledging "that this kind of error will never be made again," President Ford on Thursday formally lifted the World War II order that sent 112,000 Japanese-Americans to relocation camps.

His proclamation to that effect was 34 years from the day that President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the post-Pearl Harbor climate, authorized what turned into mass internment camps.

Ford called that Feb. 19 "a sad day in American history" and added: "We now know, what we should have known then, not only was that evacuation wrong, but Japanese-Americans were and are loyal Americans."

Attending the signing ceremony were Hawaii's leading political figures, Gov. George Ariyoshi, Sen. Daniel K. Inouye and Reps. Patsy Mink and Spark Matsunaga, all Japanese-American Democrats, and Sen. Hiram Fong, a Republican who is Chinese-American.

"This should have been done a long time ago, but it's done now," said Ford as he shook hands with some 35 people who attended.

Actually, the order was lifted on Dec. 31, 1946, when President Harry S. Truman declared "that hostilities have terminated" and that there should be no life in that "obsoletism."

Y Army ROTC invites AF, Navy to drill meet

BYU's Army ROTC unit will sponsor the Fourth Annual Wasatch Invitational Drill Meet Saturday.

The meet will be at 8 a.m. in the west annex of the Sn Fieldhouse and will feature competition between the University of Utah Navy ROTC, BYU Air Force ROTC, BYU Army ROTC-men's and women's teams. The public is invited.

At the invitational, ROTC detachments from the area will compete in different phases of drill and ceremony according to cadet 1st Sgt. Steve Lundgren. This includes inspection, regulation drill and exhibition drill. Non-rehearsed extemporaneous drill will be featured.

The inspection phase will be carried out by regular officers and NCO's of the Marine Corps, said Lundgren. The cadet knowledge, skill and overall military bearing and appearance will be judged.

Regulation drill is a memorized routine of regulation commands, while exhibition drill is a rehearsed show precision marching and rifle movements, he explained.

Bureau directs talent, programs

PATTI VAN NOTE
Universe Staff Writer

Janie Thompson, of the Ambassadors, Sounds, Freedom, Good Time, Sunshine Express, and other groups, keeps on growing. The Program Bureau, one of these groups, is recruiting more talent. Presently, the bureau is training foreign students in international troupe singing, choir, and other activities, according to Janie Thompson, student director.

Bureau duties

Duties of the Program Bureau are to arrange and organize rehearsals and shows together. It sponsors the annual "Frolics." The Program Bureau has many different names. It was organized in 1951 and started as the Public Relations Bureau, organized by Janie Thompson and a group of students and members. It later changed to Student Program Bureau. It sponsors performing groups but formed little and put them on "Frolics." The "Frolics" is the runner to today's "Frolics." It began in 1951. The "Frolics" was the common boundary between national park and national forest. The Program Bureau became the "Frolics" Bureau. The "Frolics" is one of its groups, returned for "Frolics."

YONKON, Wyo. (AP) — A burn fire program to maintain natural areas, called the most ever undertaken by the U.S. Forest Service and National Park Service was held Thursday for the Yellowstone National Park and the Teton National Forest. The plan stems from research indicating fire is an important element in maintaining natural ecosystems, according to a Forest Service spokesman. He added that unique provisions "could allow fire to straddle the common boundary between national park and national forest."

charge of the Program Bureau at the request of former BYU Pres. Ernest L. Wilkinson.

The change was made because the administration decided professional guidance was needed to keep up with BYU's growth. Miss Thompson has organized most of the present Program Bureau groups.

The Program Bureau underwent a major change in January of 1975. It received its own duties and staff separate from the Office of University Programs.

Originally, both had been under the direction of one person. With the reorganization they became separate in function and location. The Office of University Programs moved to the Stein House while the Program Bureau remained in the Wilkinson Center.

The Program Bureau is responsible for the auditions, rehearsals, and performances of the groups, while the Office of University Programs handles information on off-campus performances and tours.

A senior from Benton City, Wash., Mark Park, will present piano compositions by Ravel and Chopin.

Amtrack to sell rail passes during 10-week trial period

WASHINGTON (AP) — Low-cost passes allowing travelers to take unlimited trips on Amtrak trains will be sold in the United States for the first time during a 10-week experiment starting March 1, Amtrak announced today.

The passes, known as U.S.A. Rail tickets, already are available overseas to persons intending to visit the United States but have never been sold here before.

Travelers will be able to purchase tickets allowing unlimited train travel anywhere on Amtrak's system for two weeks for $150. The cost will rise to $200 for 21-day passes and to $250 for passes allowing unlimited travel for 30 days.

Children between the ages of 2 and 11 will be able to purchase U.S.A. Rail passes for half price.

The current cost of a round trip by train between New York and Los Angeles via Chicago is $304. Thus, a two week U.S.A. Rail pass would save a traveler $154 and a three-week pass would save him $104.

Amtrak also announced that the Southern Railway, which operates between Washington and New Orleans, had agreed to accept U.S.A. Rail passes for travel on Southern trains after March 15.

The cost of a regular coach round trip from Washington to New Orleans is $152.

The U.S.A. Rail pass will provide coach transportation on Amtrak's regular trains, but passengers desiring to travel on premium trains, such as the high speed Metroliner between Washington and New Orleans, or wishing to upgrade their coach tickets to first class will have to pay the additional cost for the segment they are upgrading.

The U.S.A. tickets contain restrictions. Travelers must start their trip within 15 days after purchasing the tickets.

Stargazing during day offered at planetarium

By STEVE BALDRIDGE
Universe Staff Writer

If it's too cold for stargazing at night, consider a place where the weather is controlled and nighttime isn't necessary.

BYU's Summerhays Planetarium is available for scheduling of astronomical shows almost anytime, in addition to the regularly scheduled show presented once a month, according to Steve Hardy, curator.

Private showings

Hardy said that currently, about six private presentations are shown to groups each week. Groups include church activity groups and classes of students from schools all over Utah. Occasionally, students from out-of-state schools come to the planetarium. It is in considerable demand since it is one of only two planetariums in Utah, he said. During March and April 15 to 20 shows a week are scheduled.

The privately scheduled presentations are delivered by the planetarium staff, and the topics chosen is left entirely up to the group. Group leaders can choose from 15 prepared lectures. If a choice isn't made, the staff will usually present a show entitled "Astronomy and Religion," which uses quotes from the prophets and from scriptures to correlate the two areas.

Public lectures

Public lectures are delivered once a month, and presented by a faculty member from the Department of Physics and Astronomy. The next public lecture will be March 11, with showings at 7:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

The planetarium curator encouraged Family Home

Evening groups to make arrangements for private lectures. Monday and Tuesday nights after 8 p.m. are reserved for astronomy labs. Lectures last about an hour, depending on the topic.

Scheduling showings

Showings can be scheduled by dialing BYU extension 4361. Costs for public showings are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students and children. Private showings cost $6.50 per group, plus twenty-five cents for every person in groups exceeding thirty in number. The planetarium has a seating capacity of 60.

Hardy said that BYU's planetarium is unlike most other planetariums, because the lectures are specially requested. "Actually, it's more discussion than lecture," he says. The shows are presented live, and are geared to the average age and interests of the group, Hardy said.

Offbeat movies named for '75 Oscar awards

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Shirley MacLaine, Warren Beatty, Keith Carraway and Michael Douglas were nominated for Oscars but not for acting.

James Whitmore is one of five best-actor nominees for his role in "Give 'em Hell, Harry," in which he is the total cast.

"Jaws" was nominated as best picture of 1975 but won no mention for direction, acting or writing.

These were among the oddities in the 48th nominations for Motion Picture Academy awards, announced Tuesday at the brand-new home for Oscar. To no one's surprise, the big winner was "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" with nine nominations. "Barry Lyndon" was second with seven, but none for acting.

Offbeat Oscars

It was just one of those offbeat years, strange more than surprising. Observers wondered how Whitmore, who portrayed Harry Truman on stage hundreds of times before putting his monologue on tape, could logically compete with these film performances:

Walter Matthau, "The Sunshine Boys"; Jack Nicholson, "Cuckoo's Nest"; Al Pacino, "Dog Day Afternoon"; Maximilian Schell, "The Man in the Glass Booth";

Did Louise Fletcher, "Cuckoo's Nest" and Ann-Margret, "Toony," play supporting or starring roles? They were nominated as best actress, along with Isabelle Adjani of "The Story of Adele H.," Glenda Jackson, "Hedda," and Carol Kane, "Hester Street." And if "Jaws" was one of the five best pictures, why didn't it score in the creative categories? The other nominees: "Cuckoo's Nest," "Dog Day Afternoon," "Barry Lyndon," "Nashville."

George Burns, who costarred with Matthau in "The Sunshine Boys," somehow appears in the supporting actor category, along with Brad Dourif, "Cuckoo's Nest"; Burgess Meredith, "The Day of the Locust"; Chris Sarandon, "Dog Day Afternoon"; Jack Warden, "Shampoo."

Non-acting actors

What about the non-acting actors who were nominated? Shirley MacLaine, producer of the documentary, "The Other Half of the Sky: A China Memoir" was nominated; her brother Warren Beatty, as coauthor of "Shampoo"; Keith Carraway as writer of the song, "I'm Easy" from "Nashville"; Michael Douglas as coproducer of "Cuckoo's Nest."

Why was Federico Fellini nominated for his direction of "Amarcord" when the film won the foreign-language Oscar last year? Because "Amarcord" wasn't released until 1975, thus qualifying in all categories. Foreign language nominees don't have to be shown locally.

Reporters should have known that this was going to be an odd year. The nominations were announced in the Academy's splendid new Samuel Goldwyn theater, with banks of telephones to spread the news to the waiting world. None of the phones worked.

Our Gang motto: 'maximum of fun' Indian play scheduled Tuesday

"A maximum of fun at a minimum of cost to students" is the motto of ASBYU's Our Gang committee, said committee chairman Jody Foulkes.

The non-profit committee, which is funded by the ASBYU Social Office, is designed to provide recreation to students. "Our Gang" stands for fun," he said.

"We try to create a casual, no-date necessary situation," he said.

The committee has been a part of the Social Office since the late 1960s, according to Michael Whitaker, coordinator of student activities.

Past names of the committee were Par Nanny and Fun Company. The "Our Gang" title is two years old, said Whitaker.

Upcoming activities sponsored by Our Gang include a dating game on Feb. 27. On March 5 there will be a record-breaking party and dance, said Foulkes.

Those present will try to break the Guinness world record for the largest unsupported human circle, a circle formed by each of its members sitting on the knees of the person behind.

"We'd like to get ideas and suggestions from students," Foulkes said. Suggestions should be sent to Our Gang, plus twenty-five cents for a dating marathon, a ski party, a bowling party, and the Midnite Special movie.

The Our Gang staff is composed of 30 hardworking people," said Foulkes.

An Indian pageant, "That We May Know," will be presented Tuesday in the DeJong Concert Hall, HFAC. Kelly Harris, co-chairman of the Indian Week activities, said the pageant, which is being presented in connection with BYU's Indian Week, will be presented at 5 p.m. Admission is free.

"The play is about the trials and tribulations of a young Lamanite and his conversion to the gospel," Harris said.

"Diane Rowberry, a secretary in the Indian Financial Aids Department, wrote the play especially for this year's Indian Week activities," he noted.

Miss Rowberry said the title was chosen because the scriptures in the Book of Mormon were written for the Lamanites so that they may know the gospel."

She said she had the inspiration for writing the play while in a religion class which was studying the second book of Nephi.

Miss Rowberry, who is also directing and producing the play, said there are 23 members in the cast, all of which are Lamanites.

3 composers honored

Three works by American composers, including two world premieres by composers presently residing in Utah and a piece by native-born composer Leroy Robertson, will be featured by the Utah Symphony Friday.

The performance is scheduled at 8 p.m. in the Salt Lake Tabernacle with Maurice Abravanel conducting.

While it is one of the orchestra's regular series concerts, Friday's performance is also co-sponsored by the University of Utah Music Department as part of the university's 17th Annual Contemporary Music Festival.

All three of the composers whose works will be performed at this concert are or were during their lifetime associated with the U. of U. Music Department.

Opening the concert will be the World Premiere of Vladimir Ussachevsky's Colloquy for Symphony Orchestra, Electronic Tape and Various Chords featuring an interplay between the orchestra, Conductor Maurice Abravanel and a tape recorder.

Sally Peterson, BYU teacher and former Miss Utah will be soloist in the World Premiere of Ramiro Cortes' Piano Concerto with the composer conducting. Cortes and Ussachevsky are both composers-in-residence of the U. of U. at the present time. Abravanel will conduct the Utah Symphony's third performance of the monumental Robertson Trilogy which won the $25,000 Reichold Award in 1947 when it was adjudged the outstanding symphonic work from among 400 scores submitted by leading composers of the Western Hemisphere.

The Trilogy received its first performances December 11, 12 and 14, 1947, by the Detroit Symphony with Dr. Karl Krueger.

The Ussachevsky work, intended by the composer as a "fun piece" combines sound materials of all possible sources: musical instruments, sounds from the world at large, and materials produced on synthesizers and computers. The Cortes concerto is classical in form and conventional in its rhythms and harmonies.

Tickets are available at the Utah Symphony Office, 55 West First South and at the ticket booth located outside the south gate of Temple Square one hour before the concert.

Curator announces retirement

LONDON (AP) — Sir John Pope-Hennessy says he will retire as director of the British Museum at the end of the year.

"I am not retiring to do something else," Pope-Hennessy, 62, said at his London home. He has been the museum's director since 1974.

The Times said in reporting his resignation there was no substance to speculation that Pope-Hennessy was about to become director of the Metropolitan Museum in New York City.

He is the former director of London's Victoria and Albert Museum and was Clark professor of art at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., for 1961-62.

Nixon's China journey not political says Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says Richard Nixon is going to China as a private citizen and not to be involved in any foreign policy matters.

Ford told a news conference he saw no reason to ask the former president to postpone or cancel the trip, which begins Saturday.

"Mr. Nixon is going to the People's Republic of China as a private citizen at the invitation of that government," Ford said.

"I don't believe for any alleged political purposes that I should intervene with the invitation of a foreign government to have a private American citizen visit that country."

Asked whether the trip would produce any complications for U.S. foreign policy, Ford said, "None whatsoever."

As President, Nixon reversed U.S. policy toward the Communist mainland to one of seeking accommodation rather than maintaining an icy distance. The invitation is viewed generally as reaffirmation of Peking of its interest in detente and possibly as a subtle suggestion that relations with the United States are not proceeding fast enough.

In this country, meanwhile, there have been suggestions that Nixon's trip will attract attention from the Hampshire press, primary which will next Tuesday while in China.

Ford said that while he has received "plenty of briefings or information concerning world affairs" was given no special in relation to his visit.

Nixon will leave

Angela at about

Friday and return

California on Feb. 29,

said.

4 CBS programs to receive awards

The producers, directors and writers of four programs, "Babe," "The Great Migration," "Year of the Wildebeest," "Miles to Go Before I Sleep" and CBS Reports: "The American Way of Cancer," all presented on the CBS Television Network during 1975, have been chosen to receive Christopher Awards for distinguished achievement in television.

The bronze medallions will be presented Thursday at Christopher Center in New York City.

Producers Norman Felton and Stanley Rubin, director Buzz Kulik and scriptwriter Joanna Lee will receive the awards for "Babe," the life story of the country's most outstanding woman athlete Babe Didrikson Zaharias.

Producer Alan Root, executive producer Aubrey Buxton and writer John Lloyd will be presented with the awards for "The Great Migration: Year of the Wildebeest," a special devoted to the annual migration of 500,000 African wildebeest, or gnu, across the Serengeti Plain.

Executive producer Phillip Barry Jr., producer Herbert Hirschman, director Fielder Cook and writers Judith Parker and Bill Svanoe are the recipients for the "GE Theater" production "Miles to Go Before I Sleep," a drama about a young man whose granddaughter, a counselor in a treatment center for delinquent girls, convinces him to become a foster grandparent for a troubled teenager.

Executive producer and co-writer Perry Wolf and producer, director, co-writer Judy Chrichton are the winners for CBS Reports: "The American Way of Cancer," an examination of the relationship between the increase in cancer and exposure to chemicals in food, air, water and places of work.

1 lb. hamburger
2 medium potatoes, grated
2 medium carrots, grated
1 small onion, chopped
1/2 C. bread crumbs
1 egg
1 tsp. salt

Mix all ingredients together well and form into balls. Brown in hot fat. Place meat balls in a two-quart casserole dish. Mix one can cream of chicken or mushroom soup and 3/4 C. milk together and pour over meat balls. Grate cheese on top and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serves four to six.

Baked Big Burger

2 lbs. hamburger
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
1 egg
1/3 C. catsup
1 1/2 C. cooked rice
1/2 tsp. sage
2 ounces sliced cheese
3 T. catsup

Mix hamburger, salt, pepper, egg and 1/3 C. catsup. Line 9-inch pie pan with foil and press 2/3 of hamburger mixture in pan to cover bottom and sides evenly. Form remaining ground beef into 9-inch circle for top "crust." Chill meat 10 to 15 minutes. Combine rice, green onion and sage. Cover bottom of meat-lined pan with cheese and place rice on top. Invert top "crust" over rice and press top and bottom "crusts" together to seal. Invert on rack in roasting pan and remove the pie pan and foil. Spread 3 T. catsup on top and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Serves 6.

Alpine Burgers

Divide 1 lb. ground beef into 8 equal patties. On four of the patties put a slice of cheese, a slice of boiled ham or other meat and season with salt and pepper. Cover with remaining four patties and press edges together to seal. Fry for 3 minutes on each side and then simmer for 2 minutes per side. Serve on toasted buns or muffins. Serves four.

LDS youth musicians plan television special

The 400 member Mormon Youth Symphony and Chorus is featured in a special 90-minute television tribute to the "Magic of Music" scheduled for February 29 on the Public Broadcasting System.

Television star Johnny Whitaker joins the program host, Ken Sansom.

Sansom, noted for his animal and character voice interpretations, narrates his interpretation of Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf" and also narrates Benjamin Britten's "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra."

Whitaker, who at 15 is already a veteran in TV, has starred in his own series - "Sigmond and the Sea Monsters." He joins the musical organization in a song, "May You Be Blessed."

Music from "Sesame Street," "Mary Poppins," "Chitty, Chitty Bang Bang" as well as a number of spirituals will be performed by the Symphony and Chorus under the direction of Robert C. Bowden.

50-cent fee buys a guess

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - "You don't really think I can tell what kind of car someone drives just by looking at him, do you?" asks The Guesser. But for 50 cents, he'll take a stab.

The Guesser is Jack Somppi, 69, and he doesn't care how low his batting average sinks as long as he gets the customer's money. He knows the object d'art he awards for a flub is worth only a fraction of the price of a guess.

Somppi, from his ramshackle booth at the Nu-Pike amusement park in downtown Long Beach, will take a crack at almost anything - your age, weight, make of car, occupation or even what you ate for breakfast.

He's usually wrong. But it's a living.

"But you can't guess my weight," said a passing teenager.

"Then you'll win a piece of junk," grumbled The Guesser, who was in a bad mood because his stomach hurt.

The teenager walked on by and The Guesser confided, "He wasn't going to pay anyway. I can usually tell."

Customers these days are in short supply at the Nu-Pike, a decaying collection of game booths, tattoo parlors and hamburger stands with unsettling signs like, "Always a Good Safe Place to Eat."

It's an anachronism in an era of more sophisticated attractions like Disneyland and Knott's Berry Farm.

Medals come by mail--31 years late

PEEBLES, Ohio (AP) - Howard Clark's claim to be Adams County's most decorated soldier was finally vindicated when the U.S. Army sent him 12 medals - 31 years late.

Clark, 60, received the medals through the mail without any explanation for the government's tardiness.

"I just came home one day and there were the 12 medals, all boxed up on the porch," said Clark, who has a total disability pension for wounds suffered in World War II.

"People used to think I was medal crazy," he said.

"I told them I was promised the medals, and they used to say that I didn't really have the stuff coming to me."

"I always said that if the government didn't care enough about sending the medals, I didn't care enough about getting them."

Computer'll play chess to football

By MIKE BROWN
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's computers are capable of more than the amazing administrative work and storage they do. The computer in the Engineering Science and Technology Building is also programmed to play games. Kenneth Maker of the Computer Services Department, shared information the entertaining uses of the DEC (pronounced "deck") System 10 computer. "The IBM 360 computer in the Talmage Math and Computer Science Building is used mostly for administrative work and is not as versatile as the DEC 10," said Maker.

Needs password

The computer is able to play as many games as people are willing to program into it. Persons on campus can play games if they have a budget for computer time and a password to let the computer know their credit is good.

To begin play, the operator must enter his departmental code and password. After the proper information has been entered into the computer, the instructions for the game appear. If the computer is being heavily used it will inform the operator that it is "too busy for games."

The first game Maker demonstrated was Star Trek. In each game of Star Trek the operator must search and destroy enemy Klingon starships. At the start of the game he is informed as to how many enemy ships there are, how long he has to destroy them, what kind of support he has and what kind of obstacles (like stars) are in his way.

The player then proceeds to the different coordinates given on the enemy ships. This is all done using the different symbols for direction. The operator then fires in the direction he thinks the enemy lies. If he misses, the enemy randomly fires back at him. This continues until all Klingons are destroyed or they destroy the operator.

There are 50 to 60 games programmed on the computer right now said Maker. These include hangman, dot-to-dot, checkers, tic-tac-toe, chess, baseball, basketball and football. He demonstrated how to play football by picking the Pittsburgh Steelers as his opponent. The computer offers the player seven different playing options on offense and defense to decide which plays success by the probability of the play working in its certain situation.

The computer is capable of doing some interesting art work also. It can print a calendar for any year and add a picture of a Peanut character to the top. Hanging in the ESTB computer room are some intriguing geometric designs printed by the computer.

Setting up the computer, Ken Marker prepares to match wits with the electronic machine that can play a range of games.

The computer is being used more and more said Maker. "They use micro-computers in the video screen games that are so popular," he said.

Future factory worker may gain new freedom

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The year 2,000: No more assembly lines. Laborers assemble products from start to finish. They design their own factories and shops. They take sabbatical leaves. Supervisors aren't bosses but consultants to the employees who run their own workdays.

That's the way it will be in the factory of tomorrow, according to Paul Dickson, the author of a new book on working.

These work innovations are not fantasies and will affect the greater part of the nation's work force, Dickson says in his book, "The Future of the Workplace." Some American and European companies now have these practices in operation, he said.

The Communications Division of Motorola Inc., allows one person to put together, test and package the firm's pocket paging device. A Danish paint factory in Copenhagen was designed and planned by its workers. Time, Inc., International Business Machines Corp. and Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates, a Boston firm, grant employees sabbatical leaves with pay for a year.

Dickson said in an interview that less than 1 percent of the workers in such systems where he says individual potentials and talents are recognized.

Dickson, a 36-year-old former reporter for McGraw-Hill, Inc., who also wrote a book on think tanks, said he spent about three years researching the current work.

"We've really made tremendous strides in taking care of people in terms of health and benefits," he said. "But now the revolutionary thing that's happening is the content of one's job."

"This means giving people independence, letting people pick their own hours, within reason, giving them freedom and letting them form groups that boss themselves."

Labor unions are just beginning to realize that the content of jobs is negotiable, and will have to play a greater role in making work systems more enlightened, he said.

Dickson, like other proponents of job enrichment, says that workers who have greater responsibility and less supervision tend to work more and take pride in work.

He said most employees are reluctant to alter the "bosses" system because of fear of change.

"A lot of people are desperately afraid, but fear is not well founded because supervisory executives who would be displaced by this will whole new world open them," he said.

Lamanite tour subject of film

By BROOKE TODD
Universe Staff Writer

KBYU-TV's half-hour television special, "The Eagle and The Condor," is an excellent example of what good editing can do to 12 hours (22,000 feet) of film.

Although the program features the Lamanite Generation's first South American tour, it does not feature their shows, rather, their visits to ancient ruins, their experiencing a rich heritage, and their feeling a bond with their Lamanite brothers in South America.

The show will be broadcast Monday at 9 p.m. on KBYU-TV, Channel 11. It will be rebroadcast Feb. 29.

This North-meet-South of Indian cultures is reflected in the film's title.

The Condor, soaring through the sky, symbolizes to many South American Indians their hopes and aspirations in becoming great and free as a people, like the bird is great and free in the heavens.

A similar symbol can be found in the Eagle, a prayer bird of many North American Indians which flies to heaven carrying with it their hopes and aspirations.

Thus, at the onset of the film, a narrator states: "The eagle and the condor are brothers flying with the same dream to become a great people."

The narrator later states, "We call ourselves the Lamanite Generation. We believe that the Indians, Polynesians and Latin Americans are all related. The term used to describe these relationships is 'Lamanite.'"

Members of the Lamanite Generation making the tour consisted of 19 American Indians from several tribes. Some of these were Iroquois, Mandan-Stou, Navajo and Ute. There were also two Polynesians, two Mexicans and a Guatemalan.

The tour began June 21 and went through Aug. 13. According to Brian Capener, cinematographer/producer for the show, the project came about when people in both KBYU and the Indian Education department got together and decided the Lamanite Generation's going to South America would be significant, and somehow they wanted it captured on film.

Accompanying Capener in the tour was Roger Wilson, sound man and director. John Maestas is the executive producer with Jac Redford handling music composition and arrangement on all but the live tapes.

Ken Sekaquaptewa, Zeke Sanchez and Deanna Crowfoot were the film's major narrators.

Didn't want to do

Armed with the single phrase, "Indian meets Indian" and a few ideas of what we didn't want to do, Capener was assigned to produce the film.

"Essentially we knew what we didn't want to do," said Capener. No. 1 we didn't want to come back with a travel log. No. 2 we didn't want to just film the shows. According to Capener, the central themes for the film began to shape when he saw the effects being among the ancient ruins of South America had on the group, and the interaction between the Lamanite Generation with their Indian audiences.

Yet, it was not until back at the BYU studio the total concept of "The Eagle and The Condor" came to him.

Relating with audiences

At first, as is mentioned in the film, there was some apprehension as to how well the group would be able to relate and communicate with their South American Indian audiences.

This apprehension soon dissolved as the group not only performed routines, but often had audiences share with the Generation their native song and dances.

Spontaneous performances sprang up, in market places and elsewhere throughout the tour. No longer was the relationship strictly performer-audience, said Capener. "That's the kind of thing we're trying to capture."

Capener said the most important thing about the whole experience to him was seeing the Lamanite Generation meet their brother and sisters. "It was a very humbling experience to be a non-Lamanite. I felt it was a privilege to be in the presence of such a great group."

"What the film is about in my own mind is the gathering of the Lamanites in the last days, although it's not something we can come out and say explicitly (in the film)," Capener said.

BYU's Lamanite Generation is filmed during Latin American tour for TV broadcast.

Rivals to clash again

FERRI BELL, Sports Editor, is off two great games this weekend, the basketball team will clash in the non-state rival and the basketball team in the non-state rival and the basketball team in the non-state rival.

Cougar guard Tim Mould struggles to get the rebound in last week's action with Arizona State.

Cheesman getting in foul flying colors. Depending on which school's press book you read, both lead in the game series. BYU lists a record of 81-72 in the Cougar's favor while the Utes show a 64-62 Utah edge. According to BYU figures, Saturday's game will be the 153th in the series.

Utah has won six straight, with BYU's last victory coming in the first meeting of the 1973 season in Provo.

WAC leader Utah is leading the WAC race with a 7-2 record, and is 9-2 at home for the season, while the Cougars sport a 4-5 WAC record and are 4-7 on the road overall.

The Utes hold an edge in the major WAC statistics, with the exception of rebounding and scoring offense. The Cougars are pulling down an average of 40 rebounds per game, while Utah is coming up with 34.4. In addition, the Cats are scoring at 78.5 per cent clip to lead the conference.

The Salt Lake team leads the WAC in free throw percentages at .769, with the Cougars in third place at .691.

In season play, Utah also has the top scorer in the conference.

Pro track year to open

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The International Track Association is sounding notes of optimism as it starts the 1976 pro track season tonight in Salt Lake City, a place known by the ITA for numerous records broken and good crowds.

Although two of the pro tour's most colorful putter Brian Oldfield-Ag performers — distance runner Ben Jipcho and shotputter Brian Oldfield — won't be on hand, ITA Vive Pres. Bob Steiner says there are enough superstars to put on an exciting track meet.

In choosing to open its fourth season in Salt Lake, the ITA selected a site where it claims to have broken or tied world records six times and to have set an additional five world professional records. And Steiner says Salt Lake always turned out crowds.

He professed optimism about the season. "We're coming off pro track's best season by far last year, financially and for a performance and from a performance standpoint." He said the ITA led the world in seven out of 12 and had second best performances in three others. "We're quite pleased with the way the athletes are performing as professionals," he said.

Television crews will be recording tonight's competition for Staurday broadcast. There will be seven televised meets as the tour splits its schedule for the first time in hopes of picking up new stars fresh from the 1976 Olympics.

Veteran Jim Ryan, whose record of 3 min., 51.1 sec. in the mile stood for nine years, will be opposing four other sub-four-minute milers — Chuch Labenz, Keith Munson, Tony Colon and Steve Foster, said Steiner.

He also cited the $80 as one of the better events. Competitors will include Tommy Fulton, who ran the fastest 1,000 last year of 2:06.3; Ken Swenson, a 1972 Olympian; Juris Luzins and newcomer John Kipkurgat of Kenya, described by Steiner as one of the world's best middle distance runners. The long jump will see Bob Beamon, whose outdoor leap of 29 feet, 2 1/2 inches stands out among track and field performances of all time, challenging Henry Haines, holder of the pro record of 27-1.

Y grid leads state in prep letters of intent

Signing nine Utah athletes, the BYU football team leads the state in the number of prep grid stars who have signed national letters of intent.

Along with BYU's nine, Utah signed five, Utah State four and Weber State one from Utah high schools.

BYU's biggest name was Perry Bradford of West, the most valuable player last year in 4-A. Danny Hansen and Ray Linford of Granite, Steve Anderson and Lloyd Eldredge of Cottonwood, Doug Stromberg and Glen Redd of Ogden, John Ramage of Orem and Brian Hansen of American Fork also signed with BYU.

Nine athletes outside of Utah have signed, with more letters coming in.

Among the out-of-staters are tackles Alan Carlile and Conrad Jepson from Washington High in Fremont, Calif. Carlile is 6-3, 225 and Jepson is 6-2, 220.

Two other tackles are Jim Jaramillo (6-5, 225) from Neff High in La Mirada, Calif., and Eric Ingersoll (6-4, 232) of Valley High in Las Vegas. Also on the list are Tony Hernandez (Los Angeles), Lloyd Jones (Pomona), Corey Pace (Northridge), Steve Carlson (Boise) and Dennis Webb (Mesa).

Two highly recruited prep stars, Steve Davies of Murray and Gary England of Skyline, signed to play with Nebraska. Marcus Watts of Bountiful and Gary Padjen from Kearns will play at Arizona State.

Y-Utah game to be televised

Saturday night's basketball game between arch-rivals BYU and Utah will be televised throughout the state on the NBC affiliate—KUTV Channel 2.

Game time will be at 7:30 p.m. with sports-caster Bill Marcroft handling the play-by-play. Marcroft handles the radio play-by-play for the Utes.

Utah Special Events Center officials said Wednesday the 15,000-seat center is sold out for the game, except for the general admission student seats, but students are expected to take all those tickets.

The WAC's No. 1 offensive team with a 78.5 average output per game, BYU will try for revenge after an early season loss to the Utes. The Cougars were beaten 76-74 when a controversial call by the official allowed the last Utah shot to count after time had apparently run out.

Grandpa's Vice

Can be yours too!

"One of these days you're going to break your neck," grandpa used to shout as granddad raced over the wheat fields on his Harley-Davidson in 1912. But he never did.

He loved that machine—cherished it. He always took extreme pride and care of his Harley because he knew it was the best the world had to offer.

Today, Harley-Davidson is still the finest motorcycle in the world. And just as granddad did years ago, you can also feel that same exhilaration and freedom he felt, on board your own Harley-Davidson. Be like a chip off the old block. Buy a Harley-Davidson.

Arnold says

'Craig's future bright'

By GERRY MCKISSICK
Universe Sports Writer

Being a starting freshman guard for BYU has been a confidence builder for Steve Craig.

"The No. 1 thing I've improved on since the start of the season has been my confidence, and with that confidence, I've gained in my overall play greatly," said Steve.

At the start of the season the team was composed of a one-guard system and four big men. Then with the home game against Utah State, Coach Frank Arnold decided to go with two guards.

According to Arnold, it gave the team a quicker defense, especially for the full-court press.

In the Utah State game, Steve showed he had the makings of a fine college player. Because Steve was the fastest Cougar, he was asked to guard the quick Oscar Williams.

According to Steve, "defense is my weakest point now. Oscar drove a lot and it was a job to guard him. I played against him in California, so I was familiar with his moves, but he was still quick and that gave me a problem."

Best guard ever

According to Arnold, "Steve is going to be the best guard who has ever played at BYU. He has the tools and once he gets over his freshman mistakes he'll be on the road to success."

Steve came to BYU via Southern California. In high school, Steve was an all-around athlete. During his three years, Steve lettered in baseball, basketball, football and volleyball.

Steve was such a good athlete in all sports that in his senior year, besides being first-team All-CIF in basketball, he was named the 1974-75 Southern California Athlete of the Year.

While in high school, Steve's position on the basketball team was forward-center, being the tallest regular at 6-2.

According to Steve, "shooting and ball handling are my strongest points and at center I didn't do enough of that. Now playing guard, I enjoy handling the ball more."

After high school, Steve received many offers from schools across the country. He not only was recruited as a basketball player, but also received offers to play football as a wide receiver.

Among the schools which recruited Steve were New Mexico, Stanford, San Diego State, U.C.A., Nebraska and Utah State.

Childhood dream

With all these top-notch schools recruiting Steve in either football or basketball, his decision to come to BYU was somewhat already made. The desire to come to the Y was instilled in him long before his high school days. Steve is the son of former BYU cager, Bob Craig. His father played on the recently honored 1951 NIT team.

"My dad was very objective when it came time for me to choose which school I would come to, I guess my biggest influence was the way I was brought up. It had been my childhood dream to come also," said Steve.

According to Steve's dad, "We never really told him he should come to BYU, we left it up to him."

"When I was growing up, I encouraged Steve to play with his older brother. We often also played three-man basketball. Steve had to really work against his taller brother and myself. He also gained a lot of experience playing in the youth leagues I worked with," said Bob.

Steve feels that all this year's team lacked was confidence, and it has it now. "We have the confidence we're going to win and that's what we're going to do," said Steve.

12 teams will vie in soccer tourney

A dozen teams will vie for the championship of the second BYU Indoor Soccer Tournament Saturday. The tournament will be held in the West Annex of the Smith Fieldhouse from 2-6 p.m., and the Cougars will be defending the title they won two weeks ago.

The double elimination event will be divided into junior and senior divisions. Each team may register seven players, but only five will play while the other two will act as substitutes.

BYU will enter two varsity teams, the Cougars and the Cats and one JV team. The Cougars will consist of last fall season's top scorers, Brad Ord and Craig Jacobs; two transfer students from the University of Nevada Las Vegas, Varuk Komalarjun and Cliff Taber; freshman Dean Berryessa and goalie Salvador Ribalcarra.

The Cats are led by veterans Carlos Amorim of Brazil and Enrique Rodriguez of Peru. Hugo Rodas of Chile, Randy Strong, Dennis Boyle, Key Jex, George Spagnola, Alvin Strait and goalies Dan Ord and Steve Asey make up the rest of the team.

BYU's JV team is made up of Sergio Paredes, Louis Cardon, Rod Taylor, Ken High, Curt Swenson and Jim Roberts.

Admission to the tournament is free and Coach Jim Dunsara said there will be plenty of room for spectators.

Pros a mess, Daniels says

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Bill Daniels, owner now-defunct Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association, says "The professional sports world screwed up you wouldn't believe it," according to Magazine.

The former Stars owner heads Daniels Associates other companies and subsidiaries in the television industry.

The Stars folded Dec. 2 when Daniels failed to meet players' payroll. Daniels said at the time he had spent millions on the team, which won an ABA title and winning records in all but one of the five previous seasons.

Cable business

In the CATV article, Daniels, of Denver, was asked to come back into the cable business.

"I have wanted to get back for two years. But I had a by the tail. The only way I could get out of professional sports was to hang in there with it and see if I couldn't my problems," he was quoted as saying.

Daniels said he went into pro sports because the Federal Communications Commission "told our industry" that the programming business on your own, was programming."

Bad timing

"I had a bad piece of timing in that the professional world today is so screwed up you wouldn't believe," Daniels was quoted as saying.

Last December Daniels said pro basketball was in trouble and if "sanity isn't returned to the sport in order, the public is not going to stand the nonsense," he Daniels had long been critical of basketball's player demands and legal actions.

"Now," Daniels said in announcing the Stars' fold, "You see the result of that folly."

Daniels and Mountain States Sports, Inc., the holding company, were recently named with others $462,800 federal court suit filed by former Stars' C Tom Nisslake. Nisslake seeks pay for the balance of seasons under his contract with the Stars and for damage to his reputation.

Officials claim brutality after brauhaus brawl

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Officials of the U.S. Olympic Committee charged police brutality Wednesday in the wake of a brauhaus brawl involving U.S. hockey players near the close of the XII Winter Games in Innsbruck.

Philip O. Krumm, president of the USOC, made the charges in a story published by the New York Daily News. A team physician who was kicked in the groin by Austrian police told The Associated Press that "the police came and just went wild.... if it happened in the United States there would no doubt be charges of police brutality."

'Over-reacted'

"I would say the police handled it very poorly and grossly over-reacted," said Dr. Conrad L. Andringa.

Kumm would not be reached for comment. His office in Antioch, Ill., said he either was still in Austria or en route back to the States.

The melee broke out in the cellar of the Bauernkeller tavern Saturday night where the U.S. hockey team, officials, family and friends gathered after the United States lost its bid for a bronze medal by dropping its final game to West Germany.

Settled amicably

Two players, Gary Ross, 22, of Roseau, Minn., and Robert Miller, Jr., 19, of Billerica, Mass., were charged with disturbing the peace and were fined about $18. The USOC later said the matter had been settled amicably and that payment for damages to the tavern, estimated at about $1,000, would be made.

Dr. Andringa said he was kicked in the groin by police when he attempted to treat Ross, who had a cut hand.

The melee, which Miller's father, Robert Sr., said involved seven hockey players and about 30 or 40 police, erupted when the younger Miller inadvertently wandered into a private party at the tavern in search of his party.

He said both his son and Ross were roughed up later by police outside the tavern and then dumped into a police car.

Smoke, snuffles plague Ali in Coopman bout warm-ups

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, who has been suffering from a chest cold, was smoked out of his hotel Wednesday while challenger Jean Coopman visited the FBI as a guest.

Both men also put in light workouts for this island's first heavyweight championship fight Friday night. The weigh-in for the fight, which will be televised live in the United States, will be held Thursday at 4 p.m. EST, at the 12,000-seat Roberto Clemente Coliseum.

A near sellout is expected for the show which also will feature a title bout between Alfredo Escalera of Puerto Rico, the World Boxing Council junior lightweight champion, and Jose Fernandez of New York.

Ali's aides persuaded him to leave his suite at the El San Juan after a fire in his kitchen sent billowing smoke through ventilation shafts and into the corridors. The fire was extinguished quickly and no injuries were reported, but police reported an estimated $50,000 damage.

"I didn't see no fire. I just saw smoke," said Ali after a short workout in the hotel ballroom where the smell of smoke still hung heavy. "Asked if the smoke bothered him, the champion, who has been nursing a cold for more than a week, said, 'Maybe he'll have a chance because I've got a severe chest cold.' Ali went into a fit of coughing, suddenly stopped and said, 'Don't let the cold fool you. I can beat the average man sick.'"

Coopman said through an interpreter that the FBI ran a profile on him through its computers and found out all about him in just a few minutes. "They figured out I wasn't wanted," said Coopman.

Coopman wasn't scheduled to work out, but changed his mind and went through a light drill.

"He just trains all the time," said Kanter, Coopman's U.S. representative. "He doesn't train just for fights."

Western swim league to be formed next year

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — Swimming coaches for eight colleges and universities have voted to form the Northwest Swimming League, beginning with the 1976-77 season.

Formation of the league, which must receive final approval from the athletic administrations of each school, came Wednesday during a special meeting of coaches in conjunction with the start of the 1976 North Pacific Swimming and Diving Championships. The meet opens Thursday at the University of Idaho.

The eight schools which would enter the league as charter members are Highline Community College, University of Idaho, University of Montana, Portland State University, University of Puget Sound, University of Oregon, Simon Fraser University and the University of Washington.

"We decided to form the league to better solidify and enhance swimming in the Northwest," a league spokesman said. "We hope to have regular dual meets with members of the league."

inating golf in the family for generations. Srilankan participation in golf is minute in comparison to the United States. Tiru's family is one of very few in the country that owns golf clubs. "Clubs are not imported into Srilanka, so only tourists of other countries bring them in," she says. There are no golf professionals in Srilanka, and only two golf courses.

Golfing too, is a sport played only by the rich people in Srilanka. "There is a terrific class difference in Srilanka and you would never find any people from the lower class playing golf. I've been fortunate."

Changing from the official British size golf ball to the larger ball used in the United States is an adjustment Tiru is trying to make. The climate is also a change for Tiru. ## Colonels, Nuggets, Nets win in ABA

By The Associated Press

The New York Nets, trailing the Indiana Pacers by two points late in overtime, decided not to go to Julius Erving. The ball decided otherwise.

"We knew the Pacers would double-team Dr. J so our plan was to have Bill Melchionni take the shot from the baseline," Coach Kevin Loughery explained.

Melchionni missed the shot but Erving grabbed the rebound and scored a three-point play — field goal and free throw — that lifted the Nets to a 112-111 American Basketball Association triumph over the Pacers Wednesday night.

Elsewhere, the Denver Nuggets crushed the San Antonio Spurs 142-111 and the Kentucky Colonels beat the Spirits of St. Louis 110-105.

Erving, with an assortment of drives and slam dunks, led all scorers with 37 points, including seven in overtime.

The Nets, who blew a nine-point lead in the final five minutes of regulation time, escaped with their 10th victory in 11 meetings with Indiana when Billy Knight of the Pacers missed a driving lay-up in the closing seconds.

John Williamson added 29 points for New York while Len Elmore topped the Pacers with 29 and Knight scored 25.

OPINION—COMMENT

Brigham Young University

Committee can aid student consumers

Students as consumers have become increasingly important at BYU. Consumer Week is only part of the attention and aid being given to students to help make them better shoppers. Another form of help students are now receiving is the Money Management Center (MMC) 115-C ELWC. There students can obtain information about products that will help reduce costs and increase satisfaction. The Ombudsman's Office is becoming more and more effective aiding students consumers in solving problems. But perhaps one of the greatest possible assets to students is the current Better Business Affairs Committee (BBAC) which has been set up by the Provo Chamber of Commerce. The BBAC, which is the direct result of a proposal by ASBYU Pres. Bob Henrie, will continue serving students and Provo residents through April. The program will then be evaluated to see whether or not a BBB is feasible in the area. Since BYU students make up a large number of the consumers in the Provo area, it is reasonable to expect that the BBAC should be of benefit to students, but is has not been yet.

According to a story in Thursday's Daily Universe, Mike Reall, BYU representative on the BBAC, said students are not benefiting from the BBAC as much as they should. It seems more students take their complaints to the Ombudsman's office.

In order for the BBAC to aid the students in the area, students must use it.

Henrie, first as Ombudsman and now as ASBYU president, has been a major force in increasing not only consumer awareness but also consumer aid. He has said that the establishment of a BBB in the area is one of his major goals.

When the BBAC was first organized, Henrie said he thought the committee was just a means for the Chamber of Commerce to take action without making commitments. But recently Henrie has said that the BBAC is working better than he had anticipated. Provo might get a BBB yet. But not without the students' support.

Students should start taking consumer complaints to the BBAC, to give the city a good idea of the need in the area for a BBB.

As the customers of local grocery stores, clothing stores and other local businesses, BYU students need and deserve the protection a Better Business Bureau in the Provo area would give them.

Caution can avert sewage problems

The Utah County Commissioners and the State Health Department should pay special attention to a letter sent to them earlier this month from Springville Mayor Kenneth Creer.

If they take Creer's advice, the problems encountered as a result of growth in Provo Canyon can be avoided as development occurs in Hobble Creek and Spanish Fork Canyons.

Creer is concerned that the City of Springville must upgrade its sewage plant at considerable expense even if Springville should join with Provo's new treatment plant, while ineffective sewage treatment facilities are permitted in the canyons.

"Where is your consistency in insisting on all the municipalities in the area to upgrade their disposal of sewage but yet lean in the direction of septic tank, field drains and open lagoons to treat the sewage in the canyons, all so close to the culinary water supply of those people who need to make sure their sewage water is brought up to grade of potable water?" he asked.

His concern is well founded. Dr. LaVerre Merritt, associate professor of civil engineering and a member of the Provo City Water Board said in an interview for the Monday Magazine article on pollution in Utah Valley published in December, sewage treatment in Provo canyon is wholly inadequate. Soil conditions and the water table in the canyon negates the efficiency of field drains and other systems used in the canyon. The result is that poorly treated, in fact almost raw sewage, is released into Provo River, he said. The Provo canyon community of Spring Dell is a major contributor of the raw sewage, he added.

The poor treatment of waste from canyon communities will have an adverse effect on Springville, just as it has on Provo.

Creer suggested the State Department of Health, the Utah County Planning Commission and the Utah County Commission request an environmental impact review of the Springwood development in Hobble Creek Canyon and the Covered Bridge Development in Spanish Fork Canyon.

The mayor's advice is sound and his request should be granted. Housing developments in the valley do not require impact studies, but canyon developments are not ordinary developments and should not be treated as such. Their effects can be widespread and unintended. More careful study and planning should go into canyon growth than has been undertaken in the past. The Springville canyons are a good place to start.

Polls: Public pessimistic

"If the opposite of pro is con, what is the opposite of progress?"

Congress and the President included are faced with a growing problem. A pessimistic public!

Cynicism about government is on the rise. There is a belief among the citizenry that the political process is so unresponsive and dishonest that it cannot be used for the voters purpose.

Increasingly, voters see elections as a power struggle essentially irrelevant to the problems of inflation and unemployment that intensify concern the people themselves.

Public opinion polls show an array of evidence which indicates that alienation and cynicism toward government and politics have become pervasive. A "confidence-shattering decade" stretches from Vietnam through Watergate and a deep recession. Items:

By a margin of almost two to one, a Cambridge Survey Research poll finds that people believe "most politicians don't really care about me."

58 per cent believe that "people with power are out to take advantage of me," according to the Louis Harris survey.

49 per cent believe that "quite a few of the people running the government are a little crooked," according to Market Opinion Research, the polling firm for President Ford's campaign.

68 per cent feel that "over the last 10 years, this country's leaders have consistently lied to the American people," a Cambridge Survey Research poll finds.

57 per cent believe that "both the Democratic and Republican parties are in favor of big business rather than the average worker," according to a survey by Peter Hart, a pollster for many Democrats.

The uniformity of the findings by survey analysts leaves little doubt that the polls documenting massive hostility toward politics are generally accurate.

As long as this public malaise persists, politicians are going to be hard pressed to fend off the resulting erosion of confidence in this country's future.

With the election year ahead, it remains to be seen what the public will be handed by the politicians? Probably more of the same — leading to increased frustration.

If this is so, the pessimism of the American public toward politicians will only continue to sour.

Capitalism blessing to poor

Editor: We read with interest the Jan. 25 Provo Herald section "Courses by Newspapers: Third of 18 — American Issues Forum: Labor and the Changing Face" that is offered to readers for college credit by Special Courses and Conferences at Brigham Young University.

We quote from that college level course the following:

"First there has always been a relatively weak portion of the labor force — slaves, immigrants, children, women — ready to undertake tasks rejected by white, male, native-born Americans or to undertake those tasks for less pay. This 'underclass' has played an important role in providing the labor power for the expansive thrust of American capitalism."

This statement, I'm sure, is very true, but because it sounds so much like some of things I heard in the Soviet Union this last summer and because of what is left unsaid, I must comment.

What would have been the alternative for the immigrants, children and women that provided the "labor power" for the expansive thrust of American Capitalism? The alternative would have been starvation or conditions that were even worse for those same people.

Our Communist brothers and sisters believe that capitalism has only survived by taking advantage of and exploiting a weak labor force, "slaves, immigrants, children, women," while in fact capitalism has given that same working class a higher standard of living than any economic system the world has ever known.

When we realize this, we can appreciate that capitalism has been a blessing to the poor rather than a curse, as did the newspaper course, that capitalism can exist only by exploiting the poor.

It was interesting to me in the USSR to realize that my Soviet hosts didn't envy me because I was an American and could travel abroad. I found that instead, they looked upon me with disdain, believing that I had obtained such unbelievable wealth only by treasuring upon the poor.

May I say from first hand observation that the poorest class in the United States has it better than the common man in the Soviet Union — even if its only the opportunity to rise above their circumstances. That doesn't exist for the common man there.

We must be wise as serpents and harmless as doves or we, too, will be led to accept half truths in the name of humanity.

Americans need backbone

Editor: I wish to express my disappointment (though no surprise) at the resignation of Daniel P. Moynihan as U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations. Seldom have we been so nobly represented under such difficult circumstances. I, for one, will miss the unabashed frankness and dogged determination with which Dr. Moynihan has represented us.

I believe that Moynihan's resignation may be taken as another evidence of the general spinelessness of the American people (manifest by their representatives in D.C.). Henry Kissinger claims that "detente" and other "soft" foreign policy objectives are simply the best that he can do, given the belief that the American people are not willing to support a "hard line" in foreign relations. In a measure, I believe he is correct. I see the Congressional hesitation over Angola (rather convenient in an election year) as a reflection of that spinelessness and suggest that Senator Garn and his cronies spend their breath building about the fruits of American spinelessness.

United States a republic

Editor: I would like to express my appreciation for and praise of a great lady. I am speaking of Sister Barbara Smith general president of the Relief Society. The devotional address she gave was an inspiration. I find, though, a flaw in it. With the idea that "A land of democracy is an American dream, keeping the dream alive is our responsibility."

We pledged allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the REPUBLIC for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all. America is a republic, not a democracy (there is a vast difference). A dream of this land being a democracy, and keeping that dream alive would destroy our freedoms. I'm sure if Sister Smith would have considered the difference between a republic and a democracy, she would have said that a republic is the American dream, and we must keep that dream alive, and never let it die. Democracy is only one step up from mob rule. America is a republic. Let's keep it a republic.

Don't ban films from campus

Editor: In answer to a letter in the Feb. 18 Universe calling for more restrictive screening of the motion pictures shown on campus, I respectfully disagree. Simply because a movie, or any other creative work, contains portions which may be offensive to some, or standards, it doesn't necessarily follow that the whole work should be banned from campus. If such were to be the standards, much of the world's greatest artistic achievement would be unacceptable. Writers from Shakespeare to Hemingway have dealt rather openly with the full range of human experience. The same holds true for stage or dramatic productions, whether on stage or screen. And let us not forget that the Old Testament contains some very juicy tales under the guise of scripture.

Regretful as it is, man is not perfect, and any serious attempt to portray him must include his imperfections. Should the enormous good in these portrayals be rejected because it is necessarily mixed with some evil? As enjoyable as Disney is, talking mice and shaggy dogs don't exist, even at BYU.

Money talks Tales it tells shakes giant

Money speaks — today threatening American corporations and governments have used the dollar for by Lockheed Aircraft, the latest corporate disclosed, faces the loss of a $1.3-billion order to Japan and a $250 million order to Canada. The Japanese decision, following the corporation's admission paying $12.6 million under the table intermediaries to get the order, financial problems will make it impossible for Lockheed to pay off a million loan which the Nixon administration persuaded Congress to grant in 1971.

The Lockheed scandal is being uncovered in Europe. Before forming a new cabinet, Premier Aldo Moro of Italy was forced to demand Italy's former defense secretary who was accused of taking Queen Juliana of the Netherlands man to abdicate if her husband, Prince Bert, is found guilty of Lockheed bribery.

Exxon, the nation's largest corporation admitted giving $46 million to 1 political parties — $86 thousand going to Communists.

Northern confessed giving $450,000 to Saudi Arabian generals to keep a jet contract.

Gulf Oil admitted paying South Korean political leaders $1 million in bribes. Other corporations that have also come to the money play are Ashland Oil, Grumman Aerospace Corp., and U.S. Steel.

Bribery is a powerful force in communications, as is its exposure, as corporations have found out.

Now is time to take action not in future

"School is so boring and so much work will be so good after I graduate. My students take this approach to school, will it be 'so good' after they graduate? This 'I can't wait' attitude may come after graduation. 'Things will be better. I get a job. Oh, I'm so tired of this job. I'm happier when I get transferred. It will be good to retire. It will be so nice to have more free time each hour and to get the family together. I can't wait until children are raised, then we can live. Life time could easily be spent in waiting brighter future."

People become actively engaged conditioning themselves to believe that happiness and success are somewhere in the future, according to Elder Marvin J. Ashton of the Council of the Twelve. "There is an attitude of tolerating today, even long past today in anticipation of a better tomorrow," he said.

"Living today, the elements of life that wanted and needed today are avoided; there will be happiness at some future time. 'To live more fully each hour and to get the most from each day is wisdom,' Ashton said. Each day should not be wasted as it determines the significance of the future. 'How can we be happy tomorrow if 'nows' are filled with self-inflicted unhappiness and unwise delays?' Elder Ashton asked.

"The Doctrine and Covenants" states "men should be actively engaged in a cause, and do many things of their own will and bring to pass much righteousness" (D&C 58:27). People should be actively engaged today in their lives, solving problems, appreciating the joys in life, because it is on today that tomorrow builds.
